Disposal and Recycling

Our company has always been committed to ensuring the excellence of our products both in terms of quality and consumer and environmental protection throughout the entire life cycle of our articles.

The global climatic situation and the regulations in force underline the need to increase attention to the management and disposal of waste.

Please check your local waste management regulations and help ensure that recyclables are disposed of appropriately to guarantee that they can be reused.

The materials used to make our products contain important raw materials and must be managed correctly at the end of their life cycle, it is also important to always try to separate the various materials, identified by different material codes, and reduce their volume as much as possible (for example, dismantling and folding cardboard boxes).

Unfortunately, it is not always possible to mark components easily and without increasing the amount of waste produced, so we have included additional information on this website to enable you to comply with your local recycling guidelines for waste disposal of such unmarked components. To facilitate this task for the final consumer, we have provided a table below containing a list of the materials used during the production of our compasses (from the compass itself to the packaging). We invite you to print this document and keep it until the product is disposed of. This information will be useful to be able to verify and implement local guidelines on recycling and dispose of the various components in the most appropriate way.

By recycling of our products and packaging as effectively as possible, you will help protect the future of our planet and, as well, our future.

We take this opportunity to remind you that our compasses are not toys and should be kept out of the reach of children up to 3 years of age as they contain small parts which could be swallowed and sharp points which could cause injury. We recommend use under adult supervision for children under the age of 12.

Our company cannot be held responsible for damages deriving from improper use, other than that for which the product was placed on the market.
